

CALL FOR PAPERS

CURRENT RESEARCH IN TEXTILE ARCHAEOLOGY ALONG THE NILE

3000 BC: The Tarkhan Dress

1400 BC: Tapestry woven cloth,
the tomb of Tutmosis IV

200-300 AD: Garment from
Karanog, Nubia

We invite young scholars and researchers to discuss current research in textile archaeology along the Nile, from Alexandria to Khartoum. We welcome papers highlighting textiles and textile production in their archaeological context, papers following the chaîne opératoire from fibre to cloth, or on use, trade and economic perspectives.

The seminar will take place on

21 January 2019 (new date)
at Centre for Textile Research University of Copenhagen

Please send your abstract to taes@hum.ku.dk or ctr@hum.ku.dk at the latest on Monday 3 December 2018. The abstract should not exceed 200 words, and state your name and affiliation as well as your contact information (not included in the 200 words).

The seminar aims at creating a forum for researchers working with textiles in the Nile Valley as well as promoting the potential of textile studies for Egyptian and Sudanese archaeology. We hope that this seminar will be the first of many.

Please note that the seminar will also be streamed live via facebook and/or YouTube. More information will follow - see www.ctr.hum.ku.dk.
